HOPE VICTORIOUS OVER FLINT JUNIOR

KLEIS IS STAR PERFORMER;
SEVERAL NEW MEN SHOW UP WELL

Hope College opened the football season with a win over Flint Junior College 24 to 0. Flint failed to make its downs repeatedly and Hope showed up well for a green squad, Coach Jack Schouten making many substitutions.

Kleis, Hope's right half, was easily the star performer in snaring passes and making large gains by breaking through the line and long end runs. Overweg at end, Cook at tackle, and Fell at guard showed up strong.

Kleis made the first touchdown on a forty yard run around left end. Nettinga netted the second on a line plunge for seventeen yards. Russ Jappinga scored the third on a line smash about a foot from goal, and Kleis made the fourth, after Hope had worked the ball to Flint's 15 yard line. Hope missed a touchdown on a fumble less than two yards from goal. Frequent fumbling of both teams marred the smoothness of play. Two touchdowns were registered in each half.

SPORT NOTES OF INTEREST

Western State Normal School, opening up a smashing offense, tore Albion's line to ribbons Saturday afternoon and emerged victorious 28-0.

Four Albion players, Thingstad, Peck, Schultz and Baldwin were taken from the field with injuries, the latter after he had suffered several fractured ribs. Line smashes paved the way for the first three scores, the third gained when Pump caught Banachs pass back of the goal line. Lear, sub-fullback, made the fourth by running forty yards after intercepting a pass.

Kalamazoo College overwhelmed Olivet 43 to 0, in a lopsided contest. Kalamazoo put up a bag of tricks that completely bewildered the Olivet team.

Berry went over for the first score after a twenty yard run thru tackle. Skeen went over for the second on line smash after a long pass from Bridgeman netted other touchdowns. Mahoney catching one on the goal line and Lewis carrying the ball over one foot after the other pass. In the last quarter Kazoo played with only ten men on the field.

Employing its own forward pass and that of its opponents as a means of scoring, Alma college defeated Michigan State Normal in a morning game Saturday, 12-0. The Alma team scored in the first period when a long forward pass placed the ball on the Ypsi goal line and McGregor smashed over. In the second period Chatman snatched an Ypsi pass out of the atmosphere for a touchdown. Both goals were missed.

PRAYER WEEK IN CHARGE OF GREAT LEADER

FOUNDER OF VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT WILL SPEND WEEK AT HOPE

Hope College is exceedingly fortunate in being able to secure a man like Robert P. Wilder to conduct prayer week during the week beginning October 17. Ordinarily, Dr. Wilder turns down the many requests that come to him for services of this kind; but the urgency with which Hope College asked him made the request successful. Dr. Pieters is a close friend of Dr. Wilder and was instrumental in securing him.

Dr. Robert P. Wilder is General Secretary of the Student Volunteer

Movement. He devotes his whole time in leading students into Christian service; in fact, Dr. Wilder is one of the founders of the movement. About forty years ago, just after he had been graduated from college, Dr. Wilder and John Forman were inspired to gain recruits for Foreign Christian service. That first year these two men travelled all over America visiting nearly every college in the land, and such was their zeal that they were called the "flaming fires of America." These two young men single handed, gained 2,000 recruits for missionary work in that first year.

At that time there were two young men at Hope interested in this work, namely Albertus Pieters and M. Osseward. Mr. Wilder was invited to come to Hope and he came and was an aid in bringing S. M. Zwemer into the band. Those first few years brought in many other valuable recruits from other schools, among whom were John R. Mott and Robert E. Speer. It is said that the first time Mr. Wilder saw Robert E. Speer was when he came in from a football practice all spattered with mud. But when he saw Speer he picked him for a leader and that night he helped Speer decide for Christian service. The good that Wilder has done since then is incalculable. He served for some time in India, but due to sunstroke he had to leave, whereupon he worked among the colleges of Europe.

The outstanding feature of Dr. Wilder's character is his heartfelt sincerity. His whole personality radiates an earnestness that comes only after a long experience in Christian fellowship. As a speaker, Dr. Wilder has engaging ways. He is in no way oratorical, but speaks with clearness, simplicity and earnestness. His topics during prayer week will deal with

GREAT HOLLANDER TO ACCOMPANY PRIMA DONNA

ISAAC VAN GROVE WILL HAVE IMPORTANT PART IN CONCERT HERE

When Edith Mason, world famous soprano of the Chicago Civic Opera Company comes to Holland on October 22 to open the lyceum course at Hope College she will bring with her as accompanist Isaac VanGrove. Although Edith Mason is one of the greatest musical attractions Holland has ever secured there is hardly less interest in the accompanist. He is a native Hollander and won great fame as accompanist Isaac Van Grove. Throughout Europe. Authorities on music declare he is the greatest accompanist who has ever come to Holland.

For the convenience of the audience Dr. J. B. Nykerk has had two thousand annotated programs printed and these will be passed out at the concert so that the listeners may follow the various numbers intelligently. A special piano will be used at the concert provided for the occasion by the Bush & Lane Piano company.

Interest in the concert is great and tickets are selling fast. One Hope College girl student sold $200 worth of tickets and others came near equalling that record. The program will be as follows:

STUDENT VOLUNTEER COUNCIL MEETS HERE

Hope enjoys the rare privilege of entertaining the State Council of the Student Volunteer Movement for two successive years. Last year a very inspirational session was held on the Hope Campus, and it is confidently expected that this year even a greater impetus will be added under the leadership of Bob Fleming of Albion College. The representatives of the local college group are Helen Zander and Peter Van Es.

The Council meets directly at the close of Prayer Week on the 22nd and 23rd of October. In it are represented practically all the colleges and universities in Michigan. Its purpose is to formulate the policy of the state organization for the coming year and also to make plans for the annual Student Volunteer Conference next spring.

subjects as temptation, prayer and Bible reading and with other phases of the Christian life. He also expects to conduct two meetings on Sunday following prayer week dealing with missionary problems.

H. K. K. MEETS IN FIRST SESSION MOGET AND WABEKE WIN CHIEF POSITIONS

The first regular meeting of the Hope Kurfew Klub, which is composed of the gentlemen members of the senior class, met Monday afternoon for a short business meeting. Ray Gowens, the president, called the meeting together and conducted the election of the secretary and treasurer. Harris Smith and Thomas Ten Hoeve were chosen respectively.

The main point of discussion was in regard to the election of a janitor. The final decision was that two gentlemen should be chosen for the job, so that with co-operation the work might be done more effectively. After ten ballots Marinus Moget was named to fill the role of chief janitor while Jay Wabeke was chosen as his assistant. The newly elected officers each made a speech in which each set forth his platform. After arrangements for a future meeting were made, the Kurfew Klub adjourned.

STUDENTS VOTE TO REVOKE HONOR CODE

SENTIMENT STRONG TO DISCARD PRESENT SYSTEM

Hope students reject the Honor System by a vote of 144 to 50.

Why retain an inefficient honor system merely as a cloak for the cribber? This was the prevailing sentiment that influenced the student body to break with custom and to discard an established institution that had become a dead letter and an object of scorn.

A mass meeting of the students was held in chapel Tuesday evening for the purpose of discussing the question of whether or not the Honor Code should be maintained. After reading of the code by Melvin Lubbers, president of the Student Council, several speakers were given an opportunity to express their opinions. The speakers were Bruno Bruns, Betty Moir, E. Fell, and Pete De Ruiters.

The argument was rather one-sided. The reason why the Honor Code is undesirable is its evident failure as a practical means of preventing dishonest work among students. Since it fails to attain its purpose, why retain it? Further, a rejection of the system would not cast a reflection upon the college, as some seem to think. Outsiders, understanding the facts, would rather commend the student body on its wise decision. Such an action at the present time would not appear as questionable to the public or cause as much comment as the necessity of its adaption formerly.

After the stated speakers had finished their argument remarks from the floor were called for. Jay Wabeke expressed the opinion that the code did not work because it was faulty in principle since it is impossible to legislate on a moral issue. Nell Van Oostenberg spoke in defense of the system, urging caution against lightly discarding an institution which was established as a necessity and was surely a deterrent to keep some from doing dishonest work.

Although the majority of the students present were for abolition of the Honor System, according to the provisions of the Code it requires a three-fourths majority to revoke it. Since

Y. M. C. A. ABLY LED BY FROSH PRESIDENT

MANY NEW MEN TAKE PART IN SPIRITED DISCUSSION

The freshman meeting of the "Y" on October 5th was ably conducted by the class president, Paul Nettinga. The subject for discussion was "Forward, Ho!" The leader emphasized the characteristics of the great apostle Paul as the "hub" in which the "spokes" of his speech were centered.

"Progress is the word", said Nettinga, "with an objective in view." The speaker enlarged upon Paul's objective which was to become like Christ, and he showed that every frosh fellow should adopt a similar one. In addition he mentioned several other objectives, such as, Hope first, high scholarship, good character, and high Christian ideals. He related the following as ways in which these might be acquired: working hard, playing fair and putting your heart and soul into all your work. Many members of the class of '30 participated, which made the meeting an excellent one.

Henry Steffens, a frosh, furnished the special music in the form of a piano solo. He played "Goodnight."

Y. W. IN FIRST REGULAR MEETING

ALICE IHRMAN SPEAKS ON "WHITHER BOUND?"

On Thursday evening the "Y" girls again assembled in Winants Chapel for the first indoor meeting. Dorothy Mulder led the singing and everyone seemed to catch the old "Y" spirit again as old favorites were announced.

The leader, Alice Ihrman, read the Scripture, after which she spoke on the subject "Whither Bound?" Much emphasis was placed on the importance of love on the highway of life, in both her talk and the discussion that followed. She pointed out that there was a choice open to everyone which "way his soul shall go" and based her discussion of choice on Oxenham's verse "The High Way and the Law." Many helpful quotations from Geneva speakers were given and very appreciably received by her listeners.

Many girls responded in the open discussion after the talk. The meeting was closed with the "Y" song, "Follow the Gleam."

He: Why didn't you answer my letter this summer?

She: I didn't get it.

He: You didn't get it?

She: No, and besides I didn't like some of the things you said.

so large a majority was not obtained, and only about half the students were present, the code is still in force and another mass meeting will probably be called, at which all students should be present to vote on this important matter.

The president of the Athletic Board, N. Van Oostenberg, also submitted the slate of the new Athletic Board for ratification by the student body. The students signified their approval by a unanimous vote. Students, it is your Athletic Board; give them your support to the uttermost.

"I WANT TO BE HAPPY—"

Happiness is often a difficult state of mind to achieve. It is hard to be cheerful while trying to write an editorial when, in the estimation of this particular editor, there is nothing to write about. There is but one redeeming feature: as a last resort, one can gather up the quotations that have been collected in his notebook, and place them in such a position as to form what some (it is hoped) may consider an editorial.

For it really is interesting to see the opinions of greater minds than ours on subjects which we ourselves often meditate upon. Here are just a few quotations on happiness.

Robert G. Ingersoll declares "Happiness is the only good. The place to be happy is here. The time to be happy is now so." T. B. Aldrich admires others so. T. B. Aldrich advises us to adopt this as our motto: "I'll not confer with sorrow till tomorrow; but joy shall have her way this very day." Emerson, speaking evidently to the ambitious, says that "Power dwells with cheerfulness." According to Browning you should "Desire joy and thank God for it. Renounce it if need be, for others' sake. That's joy beyond joy." Walter Savage Landor holds the rather unorthodox view that "Goodness does not more certainly make men happy, than happiness makes them good." Dickens' hint to the co-eds is this: "Cheerfulness and content are great beautifiers and are famous preservers of youthful looks." Victor Hugo likes the "laughter that opens the lips and the heart, that shows at the same time pearls and the soul." And Byron writes, "All who would joy win, must show it; happiness was born a twin."

WHAT INFLUENCE DOES "PRAYER WEEK" EXERT

The above asked question is based on the promise that the "Annual Prayer Week" leaves a marked influence on the College life to a greater or lesser degree. The intensity or extensity of this influence depends partly on the speaker of the week, partly on the individual himself or herself, and partly on God.

To what extent is the speaker's influence felt? We are all agreed that every speaker leaves either a strong or a weak influence; but we are not all agreed as to the amount of influence, i. e., as to how long his influence will last. The remark has been made after a speaker has gone, "He was alright but I think 'So and So' would have left a deeper impression." Is such a statement a reflection on the speaker or on the individual? If it is honest criticism then the individual failed to receive some blessing, which he had hoped would come through the speaker. But after all the calibre of the men who have led Hope through the "Annual Prayer Week" has been and is such as to win the admiration of those who are leaders in religious affairs. Such criticism is an admission that the influence does not come solely and altogether from the speaker. The speaker's influence will be felt to the degree that he can "get next" to the student body, or to the extent that he can win their admiration. If a speaker is blest with a fine physique, plus oratorical ability, plus a lively spiritual life, he will leave an impression upon the athlete, the orator, and the religious man. But if a man should have but one of these blessings, and lack either one of the other two, or both, his influence will be partially impaired.

Since it is also true that there are but few individuals who have this "Three-in-One" make-up, it follows that the extensity of the influence will depend in part upon themselves. To illustrate, suppose that you attend one of the games of the World Series, but it is immaterial to you who wins, are you not by your half-hearted attitude diminishing your interest to a large extent? The same thing holds true in spiritual matters. Enter "Prayer Week" with a half-hearted attitude, or with a critical frame of mind toward the Y. M. and the Y. W. members, or with any other prejudice, you will be limiting the amount of influence to a minimum. Many a person has left a lecture room, saying, that they didn't get anything out of the lecture. Was it the lecturer's fault or the individual's? It may have been either, or it may have been both; but no one can go thru a week of prayer without receiving a blessing and lay all the blame at the feet of the leader. Enter "Prayer Week" with a prayer on your lips and you will come out with a blessing in your life. Enter "Prayer Week" with dissatisfaction because of some person or another and you will come out dissatisfied with yourself. Enter "Prayer Week" dissatisfied with yourself (noble discontent) and you will come out satisfied with God.

To what extent does God influence the man or woman who goes through a week of prayer? That He does influence is a foregone conclusion, because prayer is communion with God. There isn't a person who knows the extent of God's influence, but there are many men and women who testify to the fact that their entire careers have been changed because of "The Annual Prayer Week." One of the poets has said—

"More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of." To sum it all up, the influence of "Prayer Week" should be such that it changes things. And to the degree that we as Hopeites receive a new vision of the crystal Christ, to the degree that we realize and confess our sins, to the degree that we live for God and for our fellowmen, to that degree will the influence of Hope's "Annual Prayer Week" be felt.

HUMILITY OR HUMILIATION

After the census cards had been passed out to the student body last fall someone remarked that there were enough organizations on the campus so that nearly every student could have an office. The question is: How are these offices distributed? Are as many students taking part in collegiate activities as the number of organizations will accommodate? We find that this is not the case, but that there are relatively few students occupying the executive and administrative positions of the various organizations. Why is this so? Why is it necessary to establish a "point system" in order to safeguard some students from being overburdened with extra-curricular duties?

The criticism is often heard that ours is not a democratic society; that the few, the so-called upper forty, run the whole thing, while the rest of us have nothing to say. Is this criticism just? This is what one hears nine times out of ten when asking someone to do this or that: "O, you mustn't ask me to do that. You know there are others who can do it much better than I can. I'm not one of the brilliant ones, you know. I'm not smart enough for that," etc. And so the business goes begging until someone takes hold of it who already has enough to do, but is willing to do his best, to save the situation.

Now it is alright to be humble. The Good Book says: "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted." But there is a place where humility ends and humilation begins. God does sometimes humble a person, but He never humiliates anyone, and no one has any right to humiliate himself, for he that does shall be humiliated forever.

Even if you are not one of the brilliant ones, as you think, why not rise to the occasion when an opportunity offers, rather than to cringe like a whipped dog. "As thy day is so shall thy strength be also" has been the inspiration of many upon life's highway, and it should also be the inspiration of those who are afraid to tackle a job, because they imagine they have not the talent to do it well. Take hold of the thing that comes your way and in the execution of it use the talent you have. Self-humiliation leads to cowardice, and no one loves a coward.

Under the somber pines of a wood, in a never ending darkness except for a few stray gleams of light, one comes upon a life nearly dead. Nature mourns for those whose life has disappeared from her woods. On dark mossy slopes, and hidden among dead leaves and fallen timbers she raises a memorial to those whose tread her bosom once more. One needs to become a part of those dim shadows, to let one's conscious life slowly ebb away into forgetfulness, and exist again in the past. Indian pipes, ghostly pipes, one can even hear the snap of bent twigs, and feel dark eyes bent upon him. Among the dim group a long white pipe is passed from mouth to mouth. From the curved pouch ethereal smoke climbs straight to heaven in the still air. Indian pipes, reminiscent of a life that once thronged the woods!

Who has ever seen the delicate, fragile Indian pipe? They are of the loveliest creatures of nature, a ghostly white, edged off in black, tall and slender like a long peace pipe. They are lovers of solitude and deep shade. The Indian pipe is so sensitive that when picked it quickly crumples up. They are a fungus growth, and if taken from their native soil they soon die. A parasite perhaps, for they thrive on rotted trunks and dead leaves.

Who sees these hidden treasures of nature? Who loves to leave the trodden path and sink deep into dead leaves? It gives a thrill through one's whole being to know that all this is God's world—the blue sky above, the air-filled with a thousand kinds of incense, and colors that never could be reproduced. Nature calls to you to come. You, too, can become a new creature if you let her touch your heart and soul. It is so easy to laugh, to breathe and to live.

All this was written because the smoke was seen curling from a ghostly Indian pipe.

Y. W. CABINET ENJOYS WEEK END RETREAT

DRAW ASIDE TO PREPARE FOR PRAYER WEEK

A very enjoyable and profitable time was experienced by the members of the Y. M. C. A. Cabinet in a week-end retreat that was held last Saturday and Sunday at the cottage of Mr. A. Van Duren near Waukazoo. The purpose of the get-together was to prepare for the coming prayer week thru prayer and discussion. The group journeyed to the cottage on Friday evening in high spirits which terminated in a lively song fest. Saturday was crowded with activities of all descriptions ranging all the way from dishwashing to swimming. Rev. Mr. Hagar attended the Cabinet and led the four discussions that were held on Saturday dealing with temptation, prayer and other phases of the Christian life.

In the afternoon a strenuous volley ball contest was staged in which the team captained by Lester Kuyper went down to glorious defeat. A regular football game was also held on the shore of Lake Michigan in which Mr. Richie's team again won over Kuyper's team due to the poor generalship of Roy Nattress, the quarterback. A slight casualty was sustained by Peter Van Ess when he stubbed his toe on an iceberg while in bathing. On Sunday morning Dr. Pieters led the prayer group on the subject of the mission and saving power of Jesus Christ. Various suggestions were also made by Dr. Pieters in which to make prayer week a vitalizing influence upon the Hope Campus. This retreat by the Cabinet preparatory to prayer week is a new venture and it is hoped that its influence will be so broad that it will become an annual event.

The monument at Waterloo rises on a huge earthen mound, and the Belgian lion, with his forepaw on the world, is made from the bronze guns of Waterloo. Thus, as Napoleon melted the guns of Austerlitz to make a statue of himself in the Place Vendôme, so the statue made from his guns rises as an everlasting tribute to the Belgians.

Wednesday night, July 7, found us in Paris, the city whose name has been defamed through Cook's terrorists. We had some trouble in finding rooms, but at last secured a suite in a hotel something on the order of the Ritz, only smaller and quieter. There was one bath in the place, and one had to pay six francs every time he used it, besides engaging it a week ahead.

Paris is beautiful with its large parks, its spacious squares, its many statues, and its wide and wonderfully shaded boulevards. Old Paris is entirely different from new Paris. Its streets are narrow, paved with cobblestones, and the houses rise as high walls on either side.

It is the place Vendome where the statue of Napoleon stands molded from the guns of Austerlitz, with his back forever toward the Street of Peace about which all Paris turns. One enters the Place Vendome from the Place de Opera by the Rue de Paix, the short but expensive shopping street of Paris; one leaves it to enter the Tuilleries Gardens, where at night lovers promenade among the playing fountains and in the day time neatly dressed nursemaids exercise the rising aristocracy of Paris and the world. One way from the gardens one passes the Place de la Concorde, where statues representing the principal cities of France surround the place where Marie Antoinette and fifteen hundred nobles were beheaded. Out of the Place de la Concorde in one direction leads the Champs-Elysees, terminating in the Arch of Triumph erected by Napoleon in memory of his battles. Under the Arch lies the Unknown Soldier. A simple bronze cover marks his resting place, and a continuous flame keeps bright the memory of the nation's dead. No one passes the place except with bowed head, from the lowest peasant to the president of the Republic; all pay tribute to him who died that justice might rule over power. Beyond the Arch of Triumph stretches the Grand Avenue, green as a forest with the maples that line its way.

Passing from the Place de la Concorde in the other direction is the Chamber of Deputies, blackened now by the weather of a century. A little farther on, towering above the other buildings with its glistening dome, as the man who lies there towered and shone above the men of his time, is the Place Invalides in which is found the tomb of Napoleon. Under the golden dome, in the soft light streaming from stained glass windows, lies the world's greatest general. On the main floor of the tomb are the resting places of Napoleon's brothers and of his son, the king of Rome. About the tomb is the Museum of Arms where many relics of the wars of France are kept. Napoleon's white horse is there, a very small animal branded with the crown surmounted by the "N".

Further toward the outside of the city where the Seine branches is the Cathedral of Notre Dame, a dingy and historic old place. It was Mass time when we were there and the priests in their beautiful robes, made resplendent by the candle light, added to the solemnity of the place. The voices of the Celebrant echoed and re-echoed throughout the corridors. The view from the tower, where Victor Hugo's "Hunchback" is reputed to have played, is beyond compare, with the Seine and its bridges stretching out in the distance.

Up the Seine is the Louvre, once the palace of kings, now a museum of art. For hours we walked through its vast corridors and surveyed masterpieces of the world on display there. The Venus de Milo is there in all her beauty, The Winged Victory, Mona Lisa, Ruben's "Life of Marie Antoinette," many pictures by Rembrandt, a few by Raphael, and samples from every school of art that ever existed in Europe. One leaves the Louvre tired, and the mind a muddle of pictures, statues and tapestry and is glad to sit a while at the little cafe by the Seine, there to recall and revitalize the glories of art by the light of the rising moon.

OCTOBER

Crickets are making
The merriest din,
All the fields waking
With shrill violin.

Piled up leaves smoulder,
All hazy the moon;
Nights have grown colder,
The frost will come soon.

Humor

Mull's Mull

The funniest part of this week's contribution is the fact that Hempkes, Sluyter, and De Koning insist upon sitting with the seniors in the senior section of chapel. Why? We don't know unless it is to appear dignified to the freshmen girls.

"I guess I've lost another pupil," said the professor as his glass eye rolled down the kitchen sink.

A tailor had called frequently to collect his bill, but without success. Finally in desperation, he said vehemently:

"Mr. Jones, I must insist that you make some definite arrangements with me."

"Why, surely," replied Mr. Jones, agreeably. Let's see. Well, suppose you call every Thursday morning."

"Mr. Brown has left his umbrella again. I do believe he would leave his head if it were loose."

"I dare say you're right. I heard say only yesterday that he was going to Switzerland for his lungs."

Coed—"Why didn't you find out who he is when the prof called the roll?"

Another Coed: "I did try but he answered for four different names."

Sam: "Last night I went home and got San Francisco on a one-tube set."

Tom: "That's nothing. I went home last night and got Greece on my vest."

"Pardon me a moment, please," said the dentist to his victim, "but I must have my drill before I begin this work."

"Good gracious man," exclaimed the patient, "can't you even pull a tooth without a rehearsal?"

She: "Why don't you answer my question?"

He: "I shook my head."

She: "Well, I can't hear it rattle clear over here."

Prof. Lampen: "What do we mean when we say that the whole is greater than any of its parts?"

Student: "A restaurant doughnut."

Raz: "Why is it that men like girls that pet better than the others?"

Bury: "What others?"

Mrs. Cohen (standing in swimming pool with water up to her neck)—"My goodness, Izzy, where's the baby?"

Mr. Cohen—"He's all right, I got him by the hand."

He: Don't you think your skirt is rather abbreviated?

She: No, it's only a little over two feet.

"How's the fever, Bill?"

"Not so hot."

Every Thing Ales But the Beer
Frat—This butter is so strong it walks over to the coffee and says, "How do you do."

House—"Yes but the coffee is too weak to answer."

Farmer: Hey, there, young fellow, don't go in that pasture with the red coat on!

Stude: That's all O. K. mister, I'm good at throwing the bull.

The Cuspidors

"What are you taking those cuspidors home for?"

"For my dog."

"What kind of a dog do you have, anyway?"

"Spitz."

Kid Frosh: "What is tact?"

Senior: "My boy, if you tell a girl that time stands still when you look in her eyes, that's tact. But if you tell her that her face would stop a clock, look out."
